Over 500 Volunteers Participate in First Statewide Volunteer Work Day

Thanks to picture perfect weather and the boundless energy and enthusiasm of teams of hard-working volunteers, our first-ever statewide volunteer work day—Conservation Works!—was a tremendous success.

Over 500 volunteers from more than 100 towns across Massachusetts and parts of New Hampshire and Connecticut turned out on November 6th to participate in Conservation Works! Many drove from great distances to participate in a project of interest or take advantage of the chance to visit a new reservation.

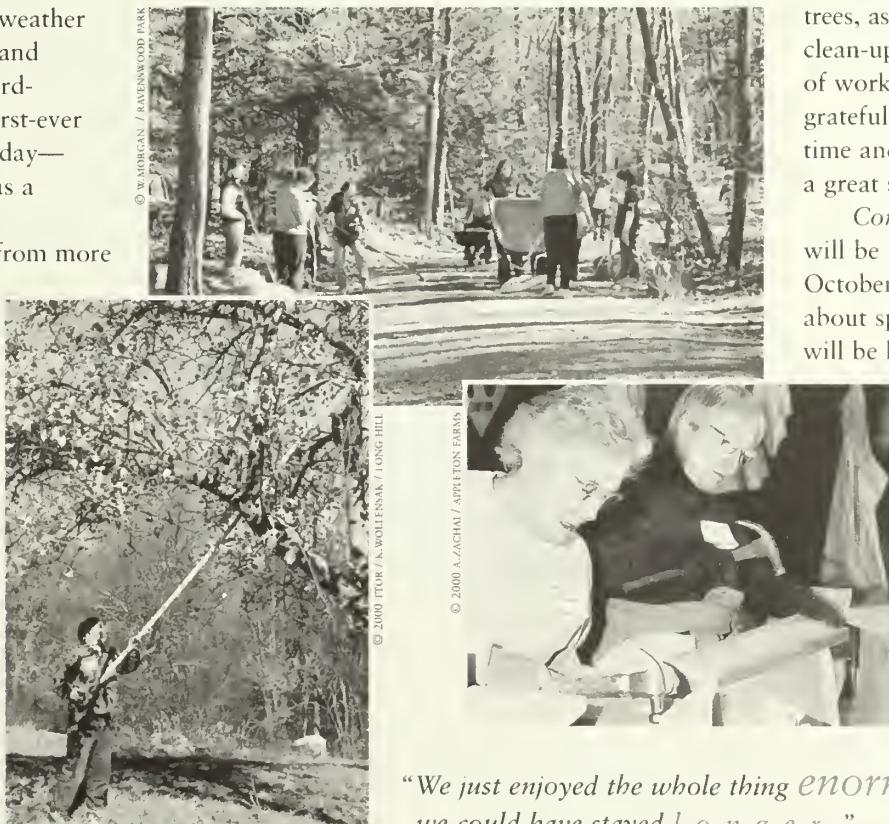

Volunteers helped us clear and improve trails, re-open vistas, build boardwalks, plant trees, assemble bird boxes, and clean-up coastlines. A great deal of work was achieved. We are grateful to all who gave their time and energy to make the day a great success.

Conservation Works! 2000 will be held on Saturday, October 28, 2000. Information about specific work day projects will be listed in our Summer 2000 newsletter as well as posted on our web site—www.thetrustees.org.

Enjoy a few snapshots from the day and quotable quotes from volunteers who wrote to us. We look forward to seeing you this fall!

"We just enjoyed the whole thing enormously and wished we could have stayed longer."

Dear Friends and Trustees,

As I approach the end of my professional tenure at The Trustees of Reservations, I am looking forward to re-joining the ranks of active amateurs. Yes, there are a few of us who are lucky enough to be putting in a stint—or career, if we've been really fortunate—as full-time staff for The Trustees. There are a great many more of us, though, who are availing ourselves of the many opportunities to serve as volunteers for what I have come to believe is the best nonprofit organization in the country.

One super-achieving volunteer I know well has, over the last 15 years, tackled a full schedule of graduate school, college teaching, raising four children, and helping her hapless husband. She's complemented this workload with a major commitment of voluntary service to The Trustees. Why does she do it? Perhaps out of loyalty or just a good old yankee sense of frugality. The idea of The Trustees getting a "twofer" appeals to her—pay for Fred, and get Susie for free.

In any event, she loves The Trustees and gets enormous satisfaction from helping us pursue our mission of preserving the best of the Massachusetts landscape. I believe her. There is something wonderful about contributing time and effort to a cause which transcends our "work-a-day" world and which will last long after we've gone.

The tradition of volunteerism within one's community or for one's favorite charity, group, or cause is rich in New England and something which distinguishes this region from others. The tradition of volunteerism at The Trustees is equally strong and stretches back to our earliest beginnings.

In this edition of Special Places, we focus on what it means to be a volunteer for The Trustees of Reservations by honoring those who were part of our first statewide volunteer work day. Last year, more than 1,500 individuals contributed over 20,000 hours of pro bono effort on some 125 separate tasks. The work accomplished was invaluable to the organization and would have otherwise fallen to paid staff or simply would not have gotten done.

There are ten volunteer opportunities highlighted on the Calendar pages of this newsletter including work days at properties and public events. You will read that we are looking for volunteer photographers to help illustrate the next edition of the Property Guide, that volunteers are needed to host the Designer Showhouse at the Inn at Castle Hill, and that help is needed by the ecology program at Long Hill. Visitors to our web site may have already seen our listing of volunteer jobs, but if you've not, go to the "How You Can Help" page, and the site will guide you from there.

You will also note in our Calendar pages that we've added a new emblem next to listings for which we are seeking volunteers. The emblem looks a bit like the old insignia on Superman's shirt, doesn't it? Or am I dating myself? Anyway, this is a call to all you Clark Kents and Lois Lanes, "Step right up... The Trustees' telephone booth awaits... see you there...up, up and away!"

Founded in 1891, The Trustees of Reservations is a member-supported nonprofit conservation organization which preserves, for public use and enjoyment, properties of exceptional scenic, historic, and ecological value in Massachusetts and works to protect special places across the state. Today, The Trustees owns, manages, and interprets 83 reservations totaling over 21,500 acres of land, and protects more than 12,000 acres through the use of conservation restrictions on 178 parcels of private land. The Trustees of Reservations is not an agency of state government. We rely for support entirely upon membership dues, contributions, grants, reservation receipts, special events, and endowments.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION

Serpentine Wall Saved!

Built in 1930 as a backdrop for Helen Coolidge's French-style potager garden, the Serpentine Wall at the Stevens-Coolidge Place in North Andover was designed by architect and garden designer Joseph Everett Chandler as a copy of one that Thomas Jefferson had designed for the University of Virginia. A single brick in width, it stands 6 feet tall, and gracefully undulates across a span of 165 feet. Chandler's Jeffersonian inspiration is an excellent example of the Colonial Revival Period, an era fascinated by colonial icons. Here, it represents the Coolidge family's homage to their distinguished ancestor, Thomas Jefferson, and was the last major collaboration between Mrs. Coolidge and Chandler.

Over the years, time and the elements have taken a toll on the Serpentine Wall. The main problem has been water infiltrating from the top down due to the lack of a protective wall cap. When constructed, the decision was made not to use Jefferson's wall cap—a design flaw that, given the forces of the freeze-thaw cycle, has led to the development of numerous cracks. As more brick and joints in the wall failed, the number of entry points for water increased, thus accelerating the wall's deterioration.

Thanks to a generous grant from the Stevens Foundation and proceeds from The Stevens-Coolidge Place's annual Spring Plant Sale, preservation mason Richard Irons was hired to restore the wall. The treatment called for complete reconstruction of the top half of the wall, salvaging as much of the original brick as possible, followed by careful mortar analysis to match the original color and texture, and finally the installation of a copper wall cap to shed water away. Although the copper cap was not part of the original design, it is a reversible preservation decision that will ensure the wall's integrity for many years.

With the restoration of the Serpentine Wall, an element of grace and elegance has been returned to the landscape. Laura Bibler, a local committee member for the Stevens-Coolidge Place, is now researching the former potager garden as part of her study in Landscape Design at Radcliffe Seminars. The French Garden, as it was called, once contained forty-two beds laid out in various geometric shapes and filled with an abundance of fruits, vegetables, herbs, and flowers. It was inspired by the great chateau gardens seen and admired by the Coolidges while in France at the beginning of World War I. In addition to the wall restoration, it is hoped that Mrs. Bibler's report will be another step toward the eventual restoration of this colorful garden feature.

acquisitions:

DEXTER PROPERTY, LANCASTER: Nathaniel "Nat" Dexter was a beloved, active member of his community and served as a Corporate Trustee and Advisory Council member for The Trustees. Though he passed away in 1999, his memory will live on through the gift of a 38-acre hilltop in Lancaster. The property is a classic glacial drumlin, impressive for its graceful form, open meadow, and the beautiful views it offers of the town, the Nashua River, and surrounding landscape of central Massachusetts.

Dexter Property, Lancaster

JOHNSON PROPERTY, PETERSHAM: Thanks to the generosity of Rosalie Fiske Johnson of Carlisle, a 40-acre parcel on East Road in Petersham was donated to The Trustees and added to Brooks Woodland Preserve. The property is covered by a mixed hardwood and white pine forest, interspersed with wetlands and a "surprise meadow" at its center. It is a wonderful addition to the reservation for visitors to explore.

conservation restrictions (CR):

CLARK PROPERTY, EDGARTOWN: George and Charlotte Clark of Brookline graciously donated a CR on 17-acres of important wetlands, oak forest, and over 700 feet of shoreline along Edgartown Great Pond. Intense development pressure on Martha's Vineyard is threatening this globally rare habitat; the CR will help to ensure its long-term survival.

COVINGTON PROPERTY, GLOUCESTER: Through the foresight and generosity of Corporate Trustees, Chris and Bonnie Covington, 121 acres of predominant woodland on Concord Street and Coles Island Road in Gloucester have been permanently protected by a CR. This land, which is adjacent to extensive marshes along Lanes Creek and Farm Creek on Essex Bay, surrounds 32 additional acres designated as reserved, single-family building envelopes, which have been carefully defined by the Covingtons' planning consultant, David Rosen of LandVest. The CR also sets specific limits on development within those building envelopes.

CRAIG PROPERTY, WESTPORT: Russell and Susan Craig donated a CR on 8 acres on the East Branch of the Westport River. The CR, which is co-held with the Westport Land Conservation Trust, protects a scenic view of the river from Drift Road.

HALE PROPERTY, SWANSEA: Richard and Maria Hale of Port Chester, NY donated a CR on 44 acres of their family farm on the Coles River in Swansea. The property has been in the Hale Family for more than 275 years. The Hales became familiar with The Trustees following a stay at Field Farm Guest House in Williamstown.

MIDDLESEX SCHOOL, CONCORD: As part of the successful campaign to protect 1,500+ acres within and surrounding the historic Estabrook Woods in Concord and Carlisle, Middlesex School has given The Trustees a CR on 53 acres of woodland and wetland in the southeast corner of its campus. This is one of the very few examples of a CR given by an independent school to protect part of its campus.

Hale Property, Swansea

PALMER PROPERTY, NATICK & WELLESLEY: Morgan Palmer donated a CR on 6 acres in Natick and Wellesley which is part of the Hunnewell Estate Historic District and abuts property protected by the Von Clemm family in 1992. The CR protects a streamside corridor that flows into Lake Waban. The gift brings to 143 the number of acres around Lake Waban protected by 9 CRs held by The Trustees.

completed 20-mile Tully Loop Trail which links various conservation lands in the area. The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management intends to purchase a conservation restriction on 103-acres of the property to permanently protect the trail. Purchase price: $50,000. For more information, call Land Protection Specialist Chris Rodstrom at 978/524-1874.

Needed: Conservation Buyer

From time to time, we use Special Places to advertise the availability of property which needs the sensitivity of a conservation-minded owner. One such property in Royalston, near Royalston Falls, is a 108-acre privately-owned woodland situated along the western side of Route 32 and containing one house lot. The Metacomet-Monadnock Trail, which crosses the northern part of the property, is a segment in the nearly massachusetts land conservation trust (MLCT):

PERKINS PROPERTY, SHARON & FOXBOROUGH: Philip and Laurie Perkins donated to MLCT 45 acres of scenic woods in the Canoe River Aquifer Area of Critical Environmental Concern in Sharon and Foxborough. After a CR is given by MLCT to The Trustees, the land will be conveyed to the respective town Conservation Commissions.

SLOCUM'S RIVER, DARTMOUTH: MLCT and the Dartmouth Natural Resources Trust (DNRT) jointly conveyed an Agricultural Preservation Restriction on 58 acres of Island View Farm to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture. As a condition of their purchase of the Waldo House, the Architectural Heritage Foundation placed a CR on the four-acre parcel surrounding the house. They then completed phase two of the Slocum's River Conservation Project by acquiring the 640-acre Dartmoor Farm, which is located across the street from Island View Farm and contains more than 100 acres of productive fields and a large contiguous woodland tract. MLCT and DNRT subsequently sold more than 500 acres to the Massachusetts Division of Fisheries and Wildlife and 120 acres to Sylvan Nursery subject to an Agricultural Preservation Restriction. Indurama Finance USA Corporation, the previous owner of Island View and Dartmoor Farms, has generously extended a right of first refusal to MLCT and DNRT on Destruction Brook Farm, the third and final property that the partnership intends to protect.

Moonlight over Martha's Vineyard Have you ever seen the sun slowly disappear beyond the shores of Long Point Wildlife Refuge? How about a full moon rise majestically over the Great Sand Cliffs of Menemsha Hills? Explore your nocturnal side this summer and experience coastal landscapes under a new light! After a successful pilot program last year, we will again offer a series of summer interpretation programs under the glow of the silvery moon, including canoe and kayak trips as well as hikes and over-sand sojourns to the lighthouse and beyond. Learn about moon lore, study nocturnal animal adaptations, and observe night critters on Martha's Vineyard. New adventures are on their way. Look for details in our next newsletter or call Suzan Bellincampi at 508/693-7662.

On Choate (Hog) Island

in Essex, windows from the Choate House are gradually being reglazed, restained, and reinstalled. Though not original to the house, they date to 1919 when, under the direction of the well-known architectural preservationist George Francis Dow, Mrs. Richard T. Crane replaced earlier sash windows with these small-mullioned sash windows containing squares of antique Belgian glass. The Choate

House was built around 1725 by Francis Choate, son of Thomas Choate, the first settler of the island. Visit Choate Island!

Volunteers Needed

at Long Hill in Beverly to participate in a program to remove invasive exotic (non-native) plants from the property's gardens and woodland. Volunteers will work in teams 2 days per month for 9 months. Work will involve cutting and removing brush, applying herbicide to cut plant stems, keeping records, monitoring sites, and replanting with appropriate trees and shrubs. The Trustees will pay for volunteers to get an herbicide applicator's license and we will provide all necessary training. For more information, call Susan McGarvey at 978/524-1859. Look for our new "V" symbol (above) in the following Calendar of Events pages for events which offer volunteer opportunities!

INTERPRETATION

Tracking Dinosaurs in the Connecticut River Valley

Since at least 1860, ichnologists (those who study fossil tracks) have acclaimed the Connecticut River Valley for its abundance of paleontological specimens, especially dinosaur tracks. Approximately 190 million years ago, during the late Triassic and early Jurassic Periods, the land that is today the Connecticut River Valley was a subtropical region filled with lakes and swamps. Two-legged, carnivorous dinosaurs crossed these lands leaving behind footprints in mudflats which were periodically wetted and dried.

Water would fill the footprints instead of wash them away and, through a sequence of climatic and geological changes over the eons, the footprints were preserved in the earth until ice, water, and wind eroded and exposed them many years later.

Preserved in tilted sandstone slabs along the west bank of the Connecticut River in Holyoke, MA are 134 separate dinosaur footprints at The Trustees' reservation by the same name. In the early 1970s, Yale University Ichnologist John Ostrom studied the tracks at Dinosaur Footprints and identified them as being from three distinct, though related, dinosaurs—the largest (11-13" long) footprints were from Eubrontes giganteus, the intermediate (6-8") from Anchisauripus sillimani, and the smallest (3-5") from Grallator cuneatus. Ostrom determined that almost all of the 134 footprints were part of 28 distinct trackways, 20 of which tended towards a westerly direction. He writes in 1972, "I was somewhat surprised to observe that nearly all the conspicuous trackways led in very nearly the same direction." Ostrom concluded, for the first time ever, that some dinosaurs—Eubrontes, for example—were actually gregarious and tended to travel as a "herd, pack, or flock."

Dinosaur Footprints offers adults and children alike the chance to step back in time and learn about the life of the dinosaurs. For families with young children, here are some questions to try to answer while visiting:

- * How many footprints do you see?
- * Are the footprints bigger, smaller, or just about what you expected? Why?
- * Do you think the dinosaurs were walking or running? Why?
- * How many trackways can you find?
- * Did the dinosaurs walk on two legs or four?
- * Do you think they rested on their tails or not?
- * Looking at the trackways, do you think the dinosaurs were friendly and liked to walk together? Why?
- * Why do you think the dinosaurs had three toes instead of four or five or more?
- * Take out a ruler, measure your stride, and compare it to that of the dinosaurs. Strides of Eubrontes are 3-4 feet long, Anchisauripus 2-3 feet long, and Grallator 1-2 feet long. How much longer were the legs of these dinosaurs than your own?

DID YOU KNOW...

Long before the existence of dinosaurs had been theorized, the first dinosaur footprint was discovered in 1802 by a boy named Pliny Moody who unearthed the footprint while plowing his family farm in South Hadley.

Though first attributed to an enormous bird, in 1836, Edward Hitchcock determined that the footprint was too old and primitive to be contemporary and must have come from an ancient, large, flightless bird. Today, we know this and other footprints come from three-toed reptiles which were probably the descendants of birds. The tracks at Dinosaur Footprints were uncovered in the 1920s when Route 5 was being constructed. Fortunately, they were not destroyed, and, in 1935, The Trustees purchased the 8-acre site from the Pellissier family.

The Trustees is currently developing a master plan for Dinosaur Footprints to improve the attractiveness of the roadside setting and increase the interpretation of this site.

PRIVATE FUNCTIONS

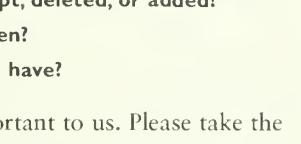

Bradley Estate To Offer Private Function Rentals

The Eleanor Cabot Bradley Estate in Canton will soon open for weddings, company functions, private parties, and meetings by nonprofit organizations and community groups. The ground floor of the Main House, which was designed by architect Charles Platt in 1902, is being carefully restored and furnished for year-round use. The facility will accommodate up to 150 people, depending on the type of event. Proceeds will go towards the ongoing preservation of the house and associated estate out-buildings as well as the care of the landscape including the formal garden, kitchen garden, woodlands, and fields. For more information, call the Function Manager at the Bradley Estate at 781/821-2977. Rates and a description of the facilities will be posted on our web site in the early spring.

THE SEMPER VIRENS SOCIETY

A charitable gift annuity with The Trustees offers you the following:

- Guaranteed fixed payments for life, a portion of which may be tax-free.
- A charitable income tax deduction.
- Reduced estate taxes.
- Membership in The Semper Virens Society, the giving society for planned gift donors.
- An investment in the future of The Trustees.

A Steady Stream of Income

Despite its frozen appearance (above), the Swift River in Petersham flows steadily onward, a constant stream of water. Imagine if you could enjoy a similar stream of income with consistent, predictable payments and make a generous gift to The Trustees. You can, with the charitable gift annuity.

For an older donor, the gift annuity offers particularly favorable rates. For example, at current rates, a donor aged 75 can earn 8.2% annually—guaranteed!

For more information about how a charitable gift annuity can improve your cash flow, please contact Sarah Carothers at 978/524-1876. Email scarothers@ttor.org

Please let us know

- Please send me information on the charitable gift annuity and other life income gifts. DATE OF BIRTH: _____
- Please send me information on how to include The Trustees in my will or make other kinds of provisions in my estate plan.
- I have remembered The Trustees in my estate plan. Please make me a member of The Semper Virens Society.

Going Places...SPECIAL Old Town Hill, Newbury PLACES!

by David Powell,

Volunteer Trail Steward

What is 168 feet high and comes in four different flavors? Give up? The Trustees' Old Town Hill in Newbury. Old Town Hill offers magnificent vistas over the Great Marsh and far to the north the distant silhouette of Mount Agamenticus in Maine. The nearly 500 acres of the reservation include open fields, tidal marshes, river frontage on the Little River, and mixed woods of oak, hickory, cedar, and pine. From the turnstile entry on Newman Road, a short, steep trail climbs past a vista looking back south to Castle Hill and The Bluffs on Plum Island. From the top of the hill, broad vistas reveal the Merrimack River Estuary and the coast running north to Maine.

The first settlement in Newbury huddled under the eastern slopes of the "Great Hill" which was used as a look-out point for the settlement's sentry. Today, Old Town Hill is a favorite spot for a Sunday afternoon stroll or a family picnic. There are several trails encircling the hill, another to the river south of Newman Road, and a new trail (part of the Bay Circuit Trail) connecting Hay Street with Boston Road. Most offer easy walking and good opportunities for cross-country skiing, though some sections can be challenging to the novice. Spring brings its own special delights as the woods and marshes come alive with migrant and summer resident birds. This past year produced a flock of over sixty glossy ibis feeding noisily in the tidal marshes as they recharged their batteries after the long flight from the south. A quiet walk through the woods and pastures can be rewarded by glimpses of a watchful barred owl, a shy hermit thrush, or white-tailed deer.

The variety of landscapes at Old Town Hill provides many rewards for the observant visitor—ones which can be savored long after the twilight has settled over the drumlin hillocks and the tidal streams that define this special place.
